

Security and Cookies

Links to other websites

The Blenheim website may contain links to other websites that may be of interest to you but over which we have no control. We cannot be responsible for the protection and privacy of any information you provide while visiting such sites and such sites are not governed by this privacy statement. Once you have used a link to leave our site you should exercise caution and look at the privacy statement applicable to the website in question.

How we use cookies

A cookie is a small file that asks permission to be placed on your computer's hard drive. Once you have consented, the file is added and the cookie will perform its function by, for example, helping to analyse web traffic or letting you know when you are visiting a particular site. Cookies allow web applications to respond to you as an individual. By using cookies, the web application can tailor its operations to your needs, likes and dislikes by gathering and remembering information about your preferences. This information is used for statistical analysis only and we do not retain any of the data. You can choose to accept or decline cookies. Most web browsers automatically accept cookies but you can modify your browser settings to decline them if you prefer.